Short title and commencement

33. This Act is called the Refugees Amendment Act, 2016, and comes into operation immediately after the commencement of the Refugees Amendment Act, 2008 (Act No. 33 of 2008) and the Refugees Amendment Act, 2011 (Act No. 12 of 2011). 15

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE REFUGEES AMENDMENT BILL, 2016

1. PURPOSE OF BILL

The purpose of the Refugees Amendment Bill (the “Bill”) is to amend the Refugees Act, 1998 (Act No. 130 of 1998) (the “principal Act”), as amended by the Refugees Amendment Act, 2008 (Act No. 33 of 2008) and by the Refugees Amendment Act, 2011 (Act No. 12 of 2011), to insert, delete and amend certain definitions; to make further provisions relating to disqualification from refugee status and losing such status; to provide for integrity measures to combat fraud and corruption among staff members at Refugee Reception Offices, at the Standing Committee and in the Refugee Appeals Authority; to omit provisions referring to the Status Determination Committee; to substitute certain provisions relating to the Refugee Appeals Authority (“RAA”); to provide for the re-establishment of the Standing Committee for Refugee Affairs (“SCRA”) and to confer additional powers on the SCRA; to confer additional powers on the Director-General; to clarify the procedure relating to conditions attached to asylum seeker visas and abandonment of applications; to revise provisions relating to the review of asylum applications; to provide for the withdrawal of refugee status in respect of categories of refugees; to provide for additional offences and penalties; and to provide for matters connected therewith.

2. OBJECTS OF BILL

The Bill introduces the amendments as follows:—

- 2.1.1 Clause 1 amends section 1 of the principal Act in order to amend the definition of “asylum seeker permit” so as to incorporate the term “visa” in order to align it with the Immigration Act, 2002 (Act No. 13 of 2002) (“Immigration Act”). It also amends the definition of “dependant” in order to limit dependants to those who are minor children of an asylum seeker or refugee, spouses and destitute, aged or infirm parents, all of whom must be included in the application for asylum.
- 2.1.2 Clause 1 further inserts two new definitions, namely that of a “Refugee Status Determination Officer” and the “Standing Committee”, which denotes a reference to the SCRA, and to further delete the definitions of “immediate family” and “Status Determination Committee”, and amend the definition of “marriage” to exclude reference to Islamic and religious unions.
- 2.2 Clause 2 amends section 4 of the principal Act in order to provide for additional disqualifications from refugee status in instances where the asylum seeker has committed a crime involving torture, or has committed crime in the Republic which is punishable by imprisonment, without the option of a fine, or a serious crime, which is listed in Schedule 2 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1997 (Act No. 105 of 1997), or for an offence in relation to the fraudulent possession, acquisition or presentation of a South African identity card, passport, travel document, temporary residence visa or permanent residence permit, or has entered the country at a place other than through a port of entry in the absence of compelling reasons, and also where the asylum seeker has failed to report to the Refugee Reception Office within five days of entry into the Republic.
- 2.3 Clause 3 amends section 5 of the principal Act in order to provide additional grounds on which a person ceases to qualify for refugee status. Similar to clause 2, the additional grounds are where a refugee (as opposed to an asylum seeker) has committed a crime inside the Republic, which is punishable by imprisonment without the option of a fine or a serious crime, which is listed in Schedule 2 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1997 (Act No. 105 of 1997), or for an offence in relation to the fraudulent possession, acquisition or presentation of a South African identity card, passport, travel document, temporary residence visa or permanent residence permit. In addition, a refugee or category of refugees would lose his or her or their refugee status if the Minister resolves to cease the recognition of refugee status of certain individuals or categories.

- 2.4 Clause 4 amends section 7 of the principal Act in order to deal with consequential amendments (i.e. cross-references to certain sections).
- 2.5 Clause 5 amends the heading to Chapter 2 of the principal Act in order to provide for the re-establishment of the SCRA, which was dissolved by the Refugees Amendment Act, 2008 (Act No. 33 of 2008).
- 2.6. Clause 6 amends section 8 of the principal Act in order to give the Director-General the power to disestablish Refugee Reception Offices. Currently, the Director-General only has the power to establish such Offices. The clause also removes the reference to a “Status Determination Committee” and replaces same with a reference to a “Refugee Status Determination Officer”.
- 2.7 Clause 7 amends section 8B of the principal Act in order to require that all members of the RAA must be legally qualified, and to provide for periodic appointments where circumstances so require.
- 2.8 Clause 8 amends section 8C of the principal Act as a result of the amendment to section 8B, which now requires all members of the RAA to be legally qualified.
- 2.9 Clause 9 amends section 8D of the principal Act in order to make it clear that the term of appointment of members of the RAA may not exceed five years (i.e. it could thus be for a shorter period, depending on the workload), and that any re-appointments may not exceed five years at a time.
- 2.10 Clause 10 amends section 8E of the principal Act in order to provide additional disqualifications from serving as a member of the RAA, which relate to removal from a previous office on account of theft, fraud or corruption, or where a member refuses to submit to a vetting investigation in accordance with section 2A of the National Strategic Intelligence Act, 1994 (Act No. 39 of 1994) when so required. The current requirement that a member must be a South African citizen is relaxed in the event that the Minister considers a foreigner to possess such skills and expertise as would significantly enhance the capacity of the RAA.
- 2.11 Clause 11 amends section 8F of the principal Act by giving the Minister the power to summarily remove a member of the RAA from office if he or she becomes disqualified in terms of section 8E.
- 2.12 Clause 12 repeals section 8G of the principal Act, which empowers the Minister to appoint suitable persons in the case of a vacancy occurring in the RAA, as provision is now made for periodic appointments.
- 2.13 Clause 13 inserts the new sections 9A to 9H in the principal Act to provide for the re-establishment of the SCRA. These provisions relate to the composition, term of office, disqualification from membership, removal from office, remuneration and administrative staff of the SCRA and mirror the provisions relating to members of the RAA. This clause further provides for the functions of the SCRA, with the main function being to review applications for asylum determined to be manifestly unfounded by Refugee Status Determination Officers (“RSDOs”). The SCRA is also empowered to determine the conditions in terms of which an asylum seeker may work or study while awaiting the outcome of his or her application for asylum, and to monitor and supervise decisions by RSDOs granting asylum or refusing an application as unfounded, as well as to advise the Minister or the Director-General on any matter referred to it, including to provide training to members of staff.

- 2.14 Clause 14 introduces a procedure for integrity testing of staff members at any Refugee Reception Office, including persons who are not members of staff but who perform any functions at such an Office, and members of the SCRA and the RAA. All members of staff must, after the commencement of the Act and from time to time thereafter, undergo integrity testing as a measure to combat or prevent fraud, corruption or any crime of which dishonesty is an element. Refusal to submit to a vetting investigation, or failing such investigation would, in the case of public servants, lead to disciplinary measures.
- 2.15.1 Clause 15 amends section 21 of the principal Act by requiring that, prior to an application for asylum, an applicant must submit himself or herself for biometrics and other data to an immigration officer at a designated port of entry or a Refugee Reception Office. Those applicants without a section 23 visa (i.e. asylum transit visa), issued in terms of the Immigration Act, should be interviewed by an immigration officer to ascertain whether valid reasons exist as to why they are not in possession of a section 23 visa.
- 2.15.2 Clause 15 also empowers the Director-General to require any category of asylum seekers to report to a designated Refugee Reception Office based on geographical considerations and to avoid swamping of a particular Refugee Reception Office. A category refers to asylum seekers from a particular country, geographic area or of a particular gender, religion, nationality, political opinion or social group. The clause furthermore empowers RSDOs, the SCRA and the RAA to reject an application for asylum, which is found to contain false, dishonest or misleading information, and it creates a presumption that someone who has indicated a language preference in the application understands and is proficient in that language.
- 2.16 Clause 16 amends section 21A in order to deal with a technical amendment by inserting the phrase “reasonably suspected to have” (a mental disability).
- 2.17 Clause 17 amends section 21B of the principal Act in order to make it clear that the dependants of an asylum seeker (i.e. a child of an asylum seeker born in the Republic and any person who have been included as a dependant in the application for asylum) have the same status as the asylum seeker himself or herself. Furthermore, to also provide that where a dependant ceases to be a dependant, such a dependant must apply on his or her own for asylum.
- 2.18.1 Clause 18 substitutes the current section 22 of the principal Act, which deals with the issue of asylum seeker permits that are now to be called asylum seeker visas, in order to align the principal Act with the Immigration Act. Challenges are currently experienced with the issue of asylum seeker permits and the right to work or study pending finalisation of the application. In the judgment Minister of Home Affairs and Others v M Watchenuka and Another [2004 (4) SA 326 (SCA)], the court did have regard to the maxim that every sovereign nation has the power, as inherent in sovereignty and essential to self-preservation, to forbid the entrance of foreigners within its dominions, or to admit them only in such cases and upon such conditions as it may see fit to prescribe. It also took account of the fact that the right to enter and to remain in the Republic, and the right to choose a trade or occupation or profession, are restricted to citizens by sections 21 and 22 of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 (“Constitution”). Granting that these and other considerations constitute reasonable and justifiable grounds for limiting the protection that section 10 of the Constitution accords to dignity, the Court held the view that, where employment is the only reasonable means for a person’s support, other considerations arise. It was pointed out that in exercising the powers and duties conferred upon it by the 1998 Act, the SCRA must take account of the circumstances of the applicant, whether on a case by case basis or by formulating guidelines to be applied when permits are issued in particular cases.

- 2.18.2 In order to give effect to the concerns raised in the above-mentioned judgment, the amendments to section 22 of the principal Act are aimed at introducing an assessment of an asylum seeker with a view to establishing whether he or she is able to sustain himself or herself (and his or her dependants) with the assistance of family or friends for a period of at least four months, before a condition to work may be endorsed on the visa. If it is found that there is no ability to sustain himself or herself (and his or her dependants), the applicant may be offered assistance by the UNHCR or any other charitable organisation or person in regards to shelter and basic necessities. Only in the event where there is no ability to sustain himself or herself (and his or her dependants) or with assistance, may the right to work be endorsed on the visa. Such right is subject to the employer or educational institution furnishing the Department with a letter of employment or enrolment within 14 days of the asylum seeker having taken up employment or being so enrolled. The asylum seeker may not apply for extension of the right to work if he or she is unable to provide a letter of employment or enrolment. In addition, the Director-General may revoke the right to work after a period of six months in the absence of proof of employment or enrolment for study.
- 2.18.3 Clause 18 further aims to make provision for scenarios where asylum seekers fail to present themselves for renewal of their asylum seeker visas after one month of expiry of the visa. In these cases their applications are considered to be abandoned, unless they can prove hospitalisation or institutionalisation. It also provides that an asylum seeker whose application has been abandoned may not re-apply for asylum and must be dealt with as an illegal foreigner under the Immigration Act. This clause further makes it an offence to be in possession of an expired visa.
- 2.19 Clause 19 amends section 23 in order to deal with technical amendments.
- 2.20 Clause 20 amends section 24 of the principal Act in order to provide for consequential amendments relating to the use of the term “Status Determination Committee”, which is substituted by the term “Refugee Status Determination Officer”.
- 2.21 Clause 21 replaces section 24A of the principal Act in order to vest the power to review manifestly unfounded applications in the SCRA, as opposed to the Director-General, as is currently provided for. It also requires the SCRA to notify an RSDO at the Refugee Reception Office where the application for asylum was lodged of its decision within five working days of such decision.
- 2.22 Clause 22 amends section 24B of the principal Act in order to provide for consequential amendments relating to the use of the term “Status Determination Committee”, which is substituted by the term “Refugee Status Determination Officer”.
- 2.23 Clause 23 amends section 27 of the principal Act in order to provide for a period of 10 years, in which a person qualifies to apply for permanent residence, as opposed to five years, as well as to provide for consequential amendments relating to the use of the term “Status Determination Committee”.
- 2.24 Clause 24 substitutes section 28 of the principal Act in order to provide for the order of removal of both refugees and asylum seekers (and their dependants who have not been granted asylum) from the Republic to be made by the Minister on the grounds of national security or public order.

- 2.25 Clause 25 amends section 34 of the principal Act in order to provide for the period within which the changes of address for a refugee must be provided to the Refugee Reception Office.
- 2.26 Clause 26 amends section 34A of the principal Act in order to provide for the period within which the changes of address for an asylum seeker must be provided to the Refugee Reception Office.
- 2.27 Clause 27 substitutes section 36 of the principal Act in order to vest the power to withdraw a person's refugee status in the SCRA, based on the same considerations as is currently provided for (but with the Minister having this power). It further provides that, in the event that the Minister has resolved to cease the recognition of refugee status in respect of a category of refugees, the SCRA must implement such resolution by withdrawing the refugee status of such category as a whole by notice in the Gazette.
- 2.28 Clause 28 amends section 37 of the principal Act to introduce new offences to deal with public servants who provide false documentation or facilitates in disguising a person's identity or status, or who accept bribes, as well as persons who produce false certification on any Act administered by the Department or manufactures documents purporting to be issued by the Department.
- 2.29 Clause 29 amends section 38 of the principal Act to empower the Minister to make additional regulations regarding the manner and period in which a matter must be referred to the SCRA.
- 2.30 Clause 30 repeals section 33 of the Refugees Amendment Act, 2008, as a consequential amendment to the re-establishment of the SCRA.
- 2.31 Clause 31 contains transitional provisions to ensure that matters pending immediately before the Bill is enacted, must be determined and finalised in terms of the principal Act, as amended by this Bill, once it is enacted.
- 2.32 Clause 32 substitutes the phrases "Status Determination Committee", "asylum seeker permit" and "permit", wherever they occur, with the phrases "Refugee Status Determination Officer", "asylum seeker visa" and "visa", respectively.
- 2.33 Clause 33 contains the short title of the Amendment Act, and provides for the commencement of the Amendment Act immediately after the commencement of the Refugees Amendment Act, 2008, and the Refugees Amendment Act, 2011.

3. INSTITUTIONS CONSULTED

The Bill was published in Government Gazette No. 39067 dated 6 August 2015. Furthermore, the Department of Public Service and Administration, State Security Agency and the JCPS Cluster of Directors-General were consulted.

4. FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS FOR STATE

None

5. PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

- 5.1 The State Law Advisers and the Department of Home Affairs are of the opinion that the Bill must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure established by section 75 of the Constitution since it contains no provision to which the procedure set out in sections 74 or 76 of the Constitution applies.

5.2 The opinion of the State Law Advisers is as follows:

- In the matter of Tongoane and Others v National Minister for Agriculture and Land Affairs and Others 2010 (8) BCLR 741 (CC) (the “Tongoane case”), the Constitutional Court determined the proper test for the tagging of the Communal Land Rights Bill (previously B67-2003, and now Act No. 11 of 2004) (“CLARA”), after the High Court held that, in classifying the CLARA for the purposes of “tagging”, Parliament had applied the incorrect test, namely, the “pith and substance” test, instead of the “substantial measure” test suggested by the Constitutional Court in the matter of Ex parte the President: In re Constitutionality of the Liquor Bill 2000 (1) BCLR 1 (CC) (the “Liquor Bill case”). The High Court, however, refused to declare the CLARA invalid for failure to enact it in accordance with the correct procedure.
- The Constitutional Court concluded that there is a difference between determining whether the National Assembly or National Council of Provinces (“NCOP”) has the competence to legislate in a particular field, and determining how a Bill ought properly to be tagged and ultimately enacted. These are two different processes for which two different tests are to be applied. Ngcobo CJ reaffirmed the decision of the Constitutional Court in the Liquor Bill case, at paragraphs 63 to 64 that the statement: “any Bill whose provisions in substantial measure fall within a functional area listed in Schedule 4”, formulates the test for determining the procedure to be followed in enacting a Bill. Ngcobo CJ further, at paragraph 58, states the following:

“What matters for the purposes of tagging is not the substance or the true purpose and effect of the Bill, rather, what matters is whether the provisions of the Bill “in substantial measure fall within a functional area listed in Schedule 4”. This statement refers to the test to be adopted when tagging Bills. This test for classification or tagging is different from that used by this Court to characterise a Bill in order to determine legislative competence. This “involves the determination of the subject-matter or the substance of the legislation, its essence, or true purpose and effect, that is, what the [legislation] is about”. (Our emphasis).
- The Constitutional Court thus held that the test for tagging must be informed by its purpose. Tagging is not concerned with determining the sphere of government that has the competence to legislate on a matter. Nor is the process concerned with preventing interference in the legislative competence of another sphere of government. The process is concerned with the question of how a Bill must be considered by the provinces and in the NCOP. The question of how a Bill must be considered by the provincial legislatures depends on whether it affects the provinces. The more it affects the interests, concerns and capacities of the provinces, the more say the provinces should have on its content. Ngcobo CJ, at paragraphs 69 and 70, concisely dealt with the tagging question as follows:

“The tagging of Bills before Parliament must be informed by the need to ensure that provinces fully and effectively exercise their appropriate role in the process of considering national legislation that substantially affects them. Paying less attention to the provisions of a Bill once its substance, or purpose and effect, has been identified undermines the role that provinces should play in the enactment of national legislation affecting them.

To apply the “pith and substance” test to the tagging question, therefore undermines the constitutional role of the provinces in legislation in which they should have a meaningful say, and disregards the breadth of the legislative provisions that section 76(3) requires to be enacted in accordance with the section 76 procedure.” (Our emphasis).

- In the light of the above, we are of the view that the purpose of the Bill is related to the efficient and effective administration of applications for asylum and the processes in that regard. The matters dealt with in this Bill do not fall within the ambit of Part A of Schedule 4 of the Constitution, which lists the functional areas of concurrent national and provincial legislative competence.
- Also, informed by the substantial measure test and the test for tagging, as confirmed in the Tongoane case, we considered every provision of the Bill, focusing on the need to ensure that provinces fully and effectively exercise their appropriate role in the process of considering national legislation that substantially affect them. In its current format, the Bill would probably not have a substantial impact on the provinces. It must also be noted that both the Refugees Amendment Bill, 2008, and the Refugees Amendment Bill, 2011, had been introduced in terms of section 75 of the Constitution. It is, therefore, our view that this Bill must be introduced in terms of the process contemplated by section 75 of the Constitution.

5.3 The State Law Advisers are of the opinion that it is not necessary to refer this Bill to the National House of Traditional Leaders in terms of section 18(1)(a) of the Traditional Leadership and Governance Framework Act, 2003 (Act No. 41 of 2003), since it does not contain provisions pertaining to customary law or customs of traditional communities.
